Greyzed

Greyzed is a stylistically bold and grungy, personal WordPress theme, ideal for personal blogs. A textured, gritty background, torn edge effects and distinctively gritty graphic elements characterize this highly popular theme.

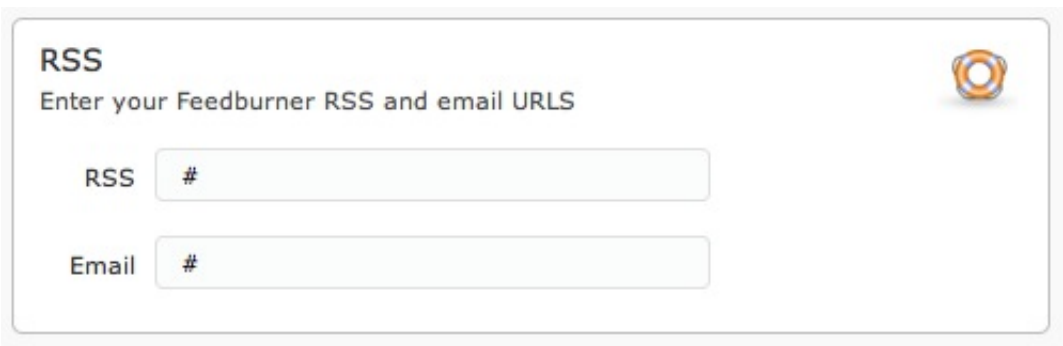

Version: 1.4
Release Date: September 1, 2010
Updated: May 23, 2011
Changelog: May 23, 2010
CMS: WordPress
Requires: WP 3.0+
Category: Personal, Club

FEATURES

Post Thumbnails
Easily add a thumbnail to your post when it’s displayed on the home page, in search or in the archives, by simply setting the featured image on the post. Classy.

Includes Theme PSD
This theme package includes the PSD image file. Your edits and customisations are now allowed and encouraged!

RSS
RSS and email feeds are a way for you to distribute your content, well beyond just visitors using browsers. Feeds make it possible for folks to subscribe to your content. You can find the links to use here by logging into your feedburner account.

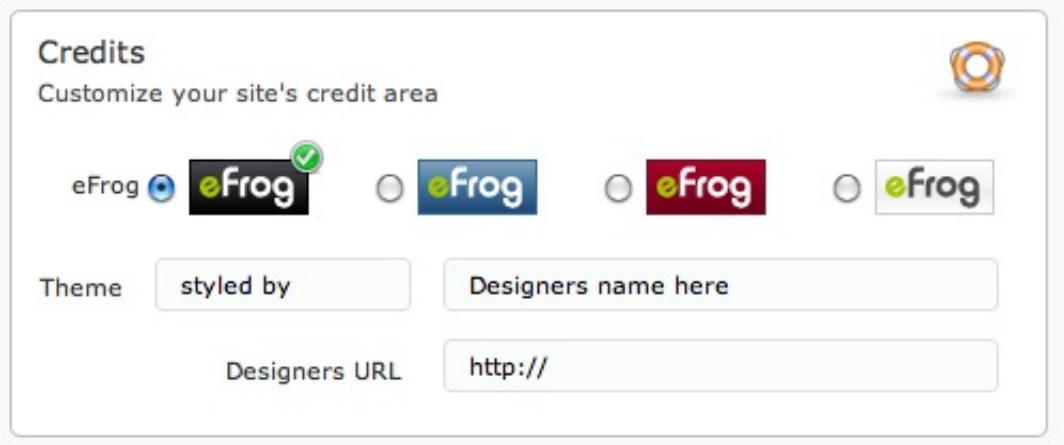

Favicon

Customise your site by adding a Favicon, a small image file, of either 16×16 or 32×32 pixels. Browsers that provide favicon support will display your favicon in the browser's address bar, and next to the page's name in a list of bookmarks.

Credits

We want you to keep the gorgeous eFrog logo in your footer, and so we have some cool colour choices for you to choose from. You can also credit the designer who's customised your eFrog theme here. Spread the love.

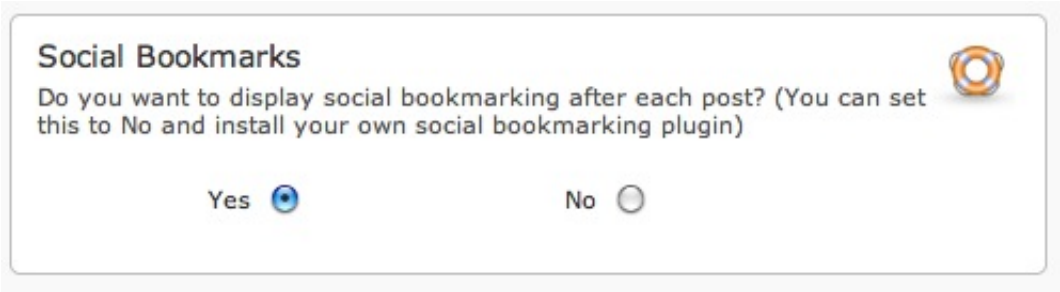

Social Profiles

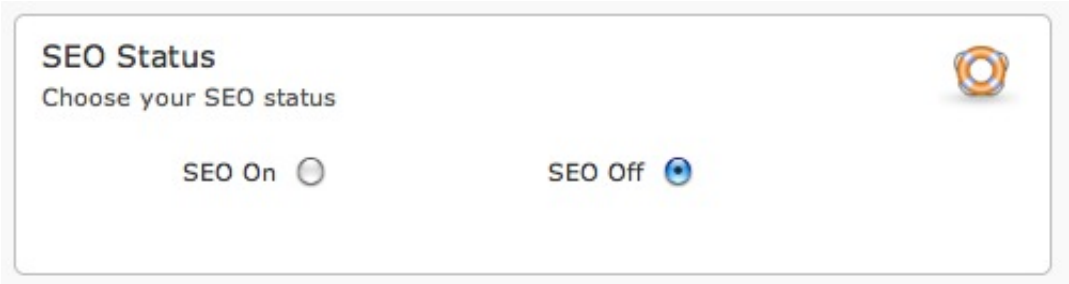

Encourage your visitors to connect with you by showing your various social profile badges – Facebook, Twitter, Last.fm, Flickr, YouTube and LinkedIn.

Social Bookmarks
eFrog themes have a very cool social bookmarking tool that appears below your posts.
This allows your readers to easily share your fantastic content with their friends on various social networks.

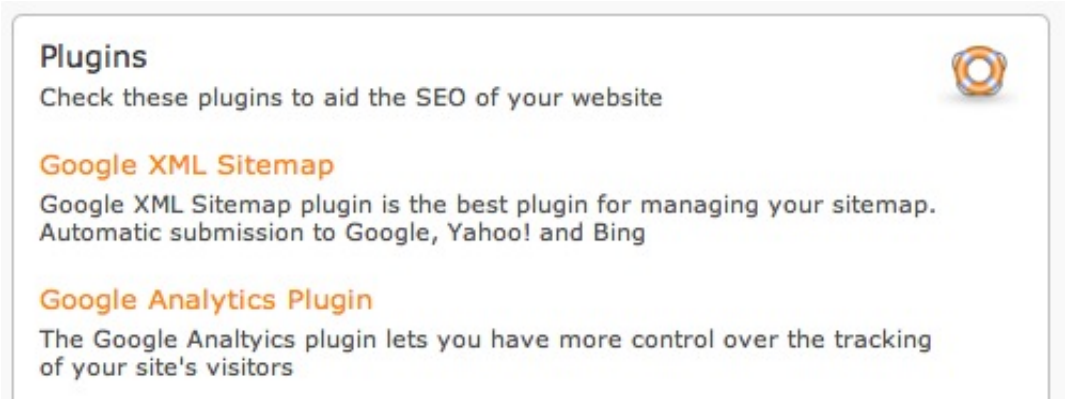

SEO Status
Normally, you'd always want this turned on. Good SEO gets more folks to your blog, and reading your content. But there may be times that you don't want that, for whatever reason. George is down with that. Turn it off here.

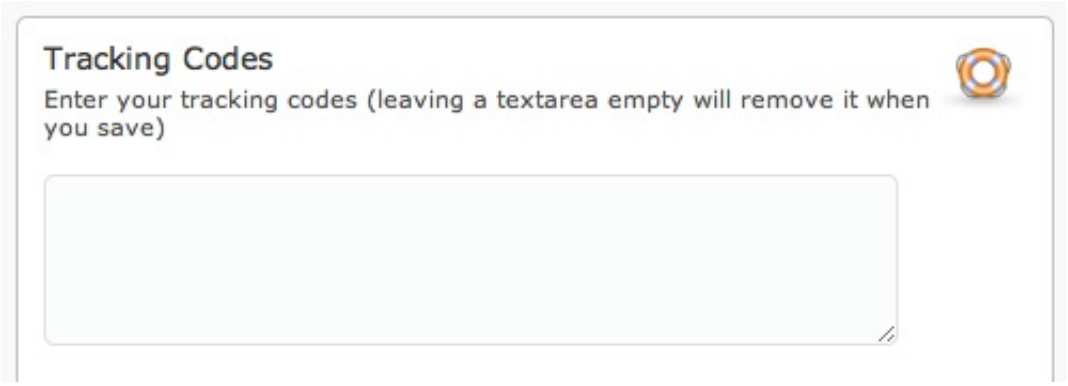

Submit
Submitting your site to these search engines, gives you a leg-up in terms of getting noticed. You're saying 'Here I am, come and index me!' instead of waiting for them to find you.

Plugins
We use these ourselves, so we know they're good. But we don't develop them, so you'll need to contact the developers if you need help.

Tracking Codes
Trackers like Google's Analytics, let you see who's coming to your blog, what they're looking at, how long they stay etc.
Your tracker will have given you some code to insert on your blog. This is the place to do that.

MORE USEFUL STUFF

Hosting Advice
So, you've taken the decision to create a blog, and you want to use a fantastic theme made but the eFrog team. That means you're in the market to self-host your WordPress installation. Here's so good advice about that.
Read more…

Installing WordPress
You've decided to start your own WordPress blog, you've found a hosting service that you like, registered a domain name, found the BEST theme to dress it up in from eFrog (where else?), and … and … what now?
Read more…

Unzipping your theme
What's a ZIP file? How do I use it? How do I unpack my new theme? The answers are here.
Read more…

Installing your theme
Once you've purchased your theme, it's time to get it installed and activated. Happily, the process is SO simple, even a frog can do it!
Read more…

Navigating the WordPress Dashboard
Once you've installed WordPress, you'll want to have a good understanding of how to work with everything it has to offer. That means working in the Dashboard. Find out all about it here.
Read more…